STATE OF THE UNIVERSITY ADDRESS BY PRESIDENT DAVID BOREN

Prof. Hewes introduced President Boren. Pres. Boren noted that he had asked Provost Emeritus Nancy Mergler to attend the meeting. As a part of the 125th anniversary campaign, he announced a new fellowship program for graduate students to assist in dissertation completion. Seven $15,000 fellowships will be offered students from all departments may apply. Initially, there will be seven, but with OU will continue the fundraising of the 125th anniversary campaign and this may be an incentive to private donors. The fellowships will be named in honor of Dr. Nancy Mergler and she may be asked to serve on the selection committee. Pres. Boren mentioned that the naming of the fellowships in honor of Dr. Merger was at the suggestion of the Faculty Senate Executive Committee.

A series of charts were distributed (attached). Pres. Boren highlighted OU’s endowment, ACT scores for incoming freshmen and graduation rates. He stated that we have 4,175 new freshmen this year. In terms of faculty compensation, he noted that OU has bested OSU for faculty compensation adjusted for the cost of living and is in the top two of the Big 12. However, he indicated that OU must to continue to address salary compression. It was also noted that OU has jumped from 170 National Merit scholars admitted last year to 311 this year.
In terms of campus planning, bonds have been approved to upgrade both Gittinger and Kaufman Halls and private fundraising to expand the Physics building is being pursued. We are already at just over $325 million in our $500 million 125th anniversary fundraising campaign.

In terms of the Provost search, the President said that a Regents’ letter went out asking for nominations of people to serve on the Provost’s search committee and they hope to have that list by the November 29 Regents’ meeting. It will be a national search.

There was a lot of anticipation of OU’s entry into residential colleges. He said that the first two naming gifts have already been made for our first two residential colleges, but he cannot yet announce them. OU will be the first purely public university to have residential colleges for upperclassman. The colleges will serve about 350 students each. The buildings for the first two will be facing north on Lindsey. They will have their own dining rooms and there will be Faculty Fellows in each college along with a Master. There will also be 8-10 faculty offices and those faculty members will be able to take meals with the students. He anticipates that a small number of graduate students will also live in the halls.

Pres. Boren would like to be able to endow some of the programs at OU that need endowment, such as the Art Museum. He is working to raise an endowment to assist the College of Education and the School of Social Work with their programs to reduce student debt by serving within Oklahoma after graduation. Some of the other items mentioned by the President include the addition of six teaching fellows with 3–year terms to rotate through the Honors College, the new Collaboratorium within the Library, and the opening of the Library collections up to make them more accessible.

He closed by noting that exciting things are happening at OU, even in difficult times. Some challenges he sees include guns on campus, improvements to campus notification systems, and state appropriations. Pres. Boren said faculty members are doing a remarkable job and it means a lot to him to be able to work with OU’s faculty and the members of the Faculty Senate. He hopes to exceed the fundraising goal for the 125th anniversary campaign. Pres. Boren asked if there were any questions or suggestions.

Prof. Coleman asked for additional details about the remodeling of Gittinger Hall. Pres. Boren said they are determining whether to remodel Gittinger or if space is needed for Physics, to move the activities in Gittinger to a new building. One option is to do something similar to what has been done for Economics. Prof. Coleman requested that they be located near the library. Pres. Boren stated that OU is running out of green space in the central campus area and thus will need more multi-story parking structures.

Prof. Halterman said he appreciated the focus on students for the residential college and the changes to the library. However, faculty in the sciences are concerned about the state of the laboratories that are used to train our undergraduate students. Pres. Boren said OU is evaluating classroom renovations, but in some cases, there is just a need for additional space. He noted that the number of students in biomedical engineering has gone up five-fold in the last five years. Pres. Boren thanked the Senate for the opportunity to speak to the Senate again this year.

REMARKS CONCERNING BENEFITS BY HUMAN RESOURCES DIRECTOR LESS HOVEN AND ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ANGELA HAWPE

Prof. Hewes introduced Human Resources Director Les Hoven. Mr. Hoven then introduced Assistant Director Angela Hawpe and turned the presentation over to her. (The slides are attached.) She announced that OU would be self-insuring the PPO and the HCA, but the HMO will still be fully insured.
Rates for the PPO/HCA are increasing 4.1% and the rates for the HMO are increasing 7.5%. Rates are based on plan utilization. There will no increases in Dental, Vision, or Long-term Care. Life Insurance premiums will go up slightly. In 2015, all co-pays will go towards the out-of-pocket maximum, including pharmacy co-pays. Employees are encouraged to utilize the Flexible Spending Accounts. She said that it is unlikely that the HMO will be sustainable much longer as it continues to see decreases in enrollment. Open enrollment will be November 3 – 21, with Benefits Fairs in the middle week. The Norman campus fair will be Wednesday, November 12 in the Regents Room of the Union from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m.

Pre-65 retirees will have the same rate increases as those in the active plan. She also announced the new ACA tracking and reporting requirements going into effect for part-time exempt employees. There are two provisions specifically for Higher Education in these regulations. One provision is for adjunct faculty and the other provision is to exclude federal work-study hours. If we do not adhere to the new rules, the penalties are steep.

Prof. Bradshaw asked for a copy of the PowerPoint presentation. Ms. Hawpe said it would be posted on the Human Resources website this week. (See http://benefitsenrollment.hr.ou.edu/2015-Plan-Changes.) Prof. Refai asked how these new regulations would affect graduate students. Ms. Hawpe said that OU would need to track graduate student hours worked. She acknowledged that it is difficult to parse out what research is being done for the student’s educational purposes and what is being done for their research assistantship.

Prof. Strout asked if the changes would affect out-of-state retirees. Mr. Hoven mentioned that Blue Cross Blue Shield would remain the third party administrator for all the plans. Prof. Riggs noted that the College of Arts & Sciences has asked departments to devise with a workload policy for students. He asked Ms. Hawpe if that would suffice to track graduate student hours. She asked him to email an example to her for review. Prof. Kutner asked about carrying over healthcare flexible spending account funds. Ms. Hawpe said that no changes have been made, but it is still a 15-month plan.

RECENT EMAIL OUTAGE

Prof. Hewes distributed as an attachment to the meeting agenda information that he received regarding the recent email outages from Loretta Early, Chief Information Officer And University Vice President For Information Technology. Additionally, he has invited her to speak to the Faculty Senate at the December meeting about a variety of issues. Prof. Hewes requested that Senators let him know of anything that they would like to be specifically addressed.

ELECTION, COUNCILS/COMMITTEES/BOARDS

The Faculty Senate approved the Senate Committee on Committees’ nominations to fill vacancies on university and campus councils, committees and boards and nominations for Faculty Senate standing committees (attached).

SENATE CHAIR’S REPORT, by Prof. Randall S. Hewes

“In response to my August 27 email to Faculty Senators asking each of you to relay any concerns from faculty that you represent, on September 9 Emily Johnson relayed a question about whether OU has been adding senior administrator positions while cutting budgets in other areas. In response, the Faculty Welfare Committee worked with Susannah Livingood, Associate Provost and Director of Institutional Research and Reporting (IRR), to obtain numbers of senior administrators, other staff, and faculty. These figures are contained in a report provided as a handout today.

“From 2007 to 2013, the number of executive, administrative, and managerial staff in academic affairs has grown from 88 to 98, an 11.4% increase. Over the same period, the number of full-time staff in academic affairs, excluding postal and FAA employees, grew from 1729 to 1862, a 7.7% increase. Postal and FAA employees were excluded from this count, because drops in those two areas reflected the loss of federal contracts and transition of staff to other employers. The total number of Norman campus full-time staff, counting both academic and non-academic departments, decreased from 4,137 to 3,986, or 3.6%.

“Over this period, the number of full-time Norman campus faculty grew from 1,368 to 1,519, an 11% increase. Page three of the IRR report shows the breakdown of full-time faculty according to rank. The number of part-time faculty grew from 289 in 2007 to 319 in 2013, a 10.4% increase. Given these numbers, most notably the 11.4% increase in senior administrators, 11% increase in full-time faculty, and 10.4% increase in part-time faculty, the Faculty Welfare Committee concluded that the growth in all areas has been proportional and that OU has not been adding senior administrator positions at the expense of other areas.

“At the Council of the Deans’ Meeting on October 1, Vice Provost Simin Pulat shared the details of a new website for faculty search committees (the link is under Services & Initiatives/Faculty Recruitment: http://www.ou.edu/content/provost/services-initiatives/faculty-recruitment.html). The page includes a section called “Golden Rules for Successful Searches,” prepared by Charles Kimball, Director of the OU Religious Studies Program, as well as guidelines, links to the provost’s memos and forms, information on avoiding implicit bias in searches, key best hiring practices, and other useful resources. Also in the meeting, Vice Provost Pulat discussed work to develop a suggested template for Progress Toward Tenure Letters. The goal of this effort is to help ensure that pre-tenure faculty receive the general guidelines and criteria for tenure in the unit as well as timely, clear, and sufficiently detailed assessments of whether their cumulative progress toward tenure is satisfactory, needs improvement, or unsatisfactory.

“On October 6, the Faculty Senate sent an email to OU faculty with a link to an opinion survey performed by the Faculty Advisory Council (FAC) to the Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education. In previous years, the FAC has sent out paper surveys, and the Faculty Senate Executive Committee has prepared the OU responses. This year, all OU faculty members had the opportunity to respond directly through the online survey. The results will be shared with the State Regents, with breakdowns specific to different types of institutions, and will guide the 2015 work of the FAC. We will share these results with the Faculty Senate when they become available.

“The Faculty Senate Executive Committee met on October 6. One item discussed was the possible creation of a Faculty Senate standing committee for administration of the Teaching Scholars Initiative (TSI). The TSI began as a grass-roots effort and has grown into an annual event that is underwritten by the Center for Teaching Excellence (CTE). The Faculty Senate Executive Committee received a proposal from the CTE and Associate Professor Susan Burke, the current chair of the ad hoc TSI committee, to formalize the committee as a Faculty Senate standing committee, with the CTE continuing to fund the initiative. With this proposed change, the Committee on Committees would make all faculty appointments, and members would have defined terms. The Faculty Senate Executive Committee expressed support for the proposal, and this will be brought to the full Senate for consideration in November.

“The Faculty Senate Executive Committee also continued its consideration of university committees that appear to be inactive. This work is ongoing and follows the committee activity survey that was sent to committee chairs by past Faculty Senate Chair Ed O’Rear last year, and further information received from Mechelle Gibson, Director of Operations in the provost’s office, over the summer.

“The Faculty Senate Executive Committee did not meet with President Boren over the past month due to scheduling conflicts. Meetings with President Boren have been scheduled for November and December.”

ADJOURNMENT

The meeting adjourned at 4:57 p.m. The next regular session of the Faculty Senate will be held at 3:30 p.m. on Monday, November 10, 2014, in Jacobson Faculty Hall, Room 102.

Statement received 16 September 2014 from Loretta Early, Vice President and Chief Information Officer, regarding OU email “blacklisting” service impacts in late August and early September 2014.

What happened:

• OU was placed on several email blacklists. A blacklist is an anti-spam feature that will block the transfer of email from systems known to produce high volumes of spam. In our case, it appears that there were several OU email accounts that were compromised and used to send out high volumes of spam. OU had several thousand legitimate email advertisements that went out at around the same time. This caused email sent from many OU email addresses to be placed on several email blacklists and consequently created issues with sending and receiving OU mail.

• Also during the intensive troubleshooting of these issues, an IT employee made programming errors that resulted in some server disconnects and impacted the service restoration efforts.

To be “blacklisted” is similar to receiving a bad credit score. There are several “clearinghouses” that provide anti-spam managed services to organizations. In fact, OU uses some of these services to block the 1.2M spam messages that are sent to our campus over any period of time.

To get removed from these blacklists requires appealing to each clearinghouse, and once approved, it can take several days for mail to start processing without delays.

Similar to improving credit ratings, any missed payment, i.e., new spam instance, puts us in the hole again. This is why residual effects and delays were being reported by individuals.

What was done to correct this:

• we are monitoring our “credit ratings” daily and proactively contacting the clearinghouses
• we are working directly with individuals still impacted by delivery delays to try to identify which clearinghouses need to be contacted
• we have increased our anti-spam controls and monitoring processes, but also recognize that we must balance these measures so legitimate messages still can be sent and received

What is being done to minimize the risk of something like this in the future

• we are sharing information and coordinating efforts with administrators of departmental email systems and with area businesses that may use less well-known or open-source clearinghouses
• we have reviewed the procedural errors with the employee and will enforce performance management and appropriate change management approval processes
• we are actively recruiting to fill a vacancy for a senior engineer for our email system
• we will use October’s Cyber Security Awareness month to raise awareness about mitigating the risks of identity theft and account compromise.
• we will notify individuals if we notice a large amount of email messages being sent from their account
• Note: “professional spammers” soon learn of an organization’s controls and find ways to circumvent them.

In addition, the supervisor of our Service Desk has addressed the need for greater understanding and sense of urgency in helping faculty with their email concerns and offered to meet with you and any of the faculty that expressed dissatisfaction with the response they received.
